

Astemo Achieves Automotive Parts Association Distinguished OE Partner Award

Astemo Aftermarket Division receives award at association's Annual General Meeting

The Distinguished OE Partner Award was accepted by Gary Plover, vice president of Astemo's Americas Aftermarket Business Division.

LOS ANGELES, April 16, 2025 – The Aftermarket Division of Hitachi Astemo Americas has received the Automotive Parts Association's Distinguished OE Partner Award.

The award was presented at a dinner during the Automotive Parts Association (APA) Annual General Meeting held recently in New Orleans.

"Our annual general meeting is where connections are made, ideas sparked and partnerships thrive," said APA President Steve Tucker. "We are grateful to everyone who joined us in New Orleans to collaborate and celebrate our shared successes."

Astemo is a global Tier One supplier of mobility solutions for the automobile and motorcycle industries. The company's aftermarket group also is a leading supplier of automotive and motorcycle aftermarket products throughout the United States, Canada, Mexico and Latin America as well as elsewhere around the world.

"This prestigious APA award is a tribute to the customer-focus, hard work and dedication of our aftermarket team throughout the Americas," said Gary Plover, vice president of Astemo's Americas Aftermarket Business Division. "We're proud to be part of a global aftermarket organization that supports the needs of millions of customers with products that feature cutting edge technology."

Astemo's aftermarket product lines include drive-control, engine-management and a full range of rotating electrical products, as well as ride-control, fuel and brake systems for the powersports market.
